

The Urban Health Spectrum: A Development Intensity Gradient
Medium-intensity development provides the health-optimal built environment

Medium-intensity built environments provide healthcare access and economic opportunity without the air quality and heat penalties of high-intensity industrial urban cores.